Character Description/Portrait

A versatile character who can effectively use Attacks and Spells simultaneously. (Remember that the term "Spell" is just to differentiate from " Attack." Spell effects could easily represent technology.) The Light Engineer starts with Shoot, a simple but effective long range Attack. They also begin with Enfeeble, an Ability that can be used as an Attack or Spell and which weaken's the target's Offense. Scan allows them to check on a foe's Defenses, allowing them to target whichever Defense is weaker: Physical or Mental.

The Spell Strike Lesson allows them to follow up a successful Attack with a Spell or vice versa. They can do both at once.

Choose between two Abilities at the start of the game: Elemental Lance or Flash.

* Elemental Lance is a Spell that deal Elemental damage. It can be used without an MP cost, and the cost can be increased to do more damage. This means you can always get extra damage from the Spell Strike Lesson. You choose between Fire, Ice, Sky, Earth, Light, or Dark.
* Flash is an Ability that can be used as an Attack or Spell. It causes Blind, a Status effect that significantly reduces the target's Offense and makes them easier to hit. It's a versatile Ability that can make openings to do more damage or run away as needed.

Personality Traits

Outside of combat the Light Engineer is very handy. They have excellent Craft, Science, and Tech Skills that can solve many practical problems they may encounter. Their high Sabotage Skill means they're as good at taking things apart as they are building them. With high Investigation, they can also discover new information or find important details in their work.

You may choose one of two starter Utilities.

1337 H4xx0r improves your ability to compromise computer and other tech-based systems. You get special complications you can impose on systems you hack.

Specialist Artisan lets you choose one type of craft that you're particularly good at. You can create your specialist good much faster than most and reliably have tools and materials for said work.
